Brief Course Description:

This course introduces students to the manifold histories of the 20th century. It is organized in chronological order, incorporating different regions of the world and various methodologies of world history into a coherent narrative. Together, we will examine the ways political, economic, and social processes have informed one another on the macro and micro level. The course shifts focus from the West to the rest of the world, inviting students to think in comparative, integrative terms.

Prominent themes include revolutionary nationalisms and enduring empires; notions of modernity, peace, and war; technology in the context of global interactions; economic and political expressions of globalization.

General University Requirement Category (200 level Cultural History):

The goal of this course is to empower students to understand historical events and movements in the world, both Western and non-Western, and to assess their subsequent significance. It uses case studies to provide an interdisciplinary view of the 20th-century world. It satisfies three credits of the GUR in Cultural History.

Course Goals:

- Identify and interpret primary and secondary sources.
- Learn key political, economic, and cultural concepts.
- Establish comparisons between past and present issues.
- Discover connections among different parts of the world.
- Understand and implement interdisciplinary approaches.
- Exercise analytical thought, orally and in writing.
- Develop out-of-the-box thinking skills.

Course Requirements:

1. Attend all classes prepared for a critical discussion and do the weekly readings.
2. Complete the weekly assignments.
3. Complete the take-home midterm assignment—which is connected to the final paper.
4. Complete the final research paper on the topic of your choice in connection to the course themes and scopes.

Indicative Topics

The following topics are merely suggestions. You do not have to limit yourselves to them. You can write about anything you want, provided that you manage to demonstrate a good understanding of a) 20th century world history b) historical methodology.
