Course description: Podcasting has become an extremely popular and powerful communications medium. The primary objective of this course is to introduce and usher students through the process(es) of creating elementary podcasts based on their own personal interests. This course guides students through the processes of conceiving, cultivating content for, refining, and producing their own basic podcast. Students in the course are introduced to the fundamental aspects of podcasting, and will produce a series of unified, thematic podcasts of their own design.

This course is scheduled to meet in-person every Tuesday night during the semester. Attendance is mandatory. Missing multiple classes will harm your final grade (5 points for every two unexcused absences). Campus meetings will happen in Cullimore 311 on Tuesdays at 6 p.m.

A Final Examination will not be given.

Course materials, assignments, and information will be exchanged via Canvas (<https://canvas.njit.edu/>), which will include topical discussion forums and work submission portals.

Course textbook: Everybody Has a Podcast (except you) [Justin, Travis, and Griffin McElroy, ISBN 978-0-06-297480-8]. [Amazon link].

Other course materials, including links to forms, templates, and course Listening Session records, prepared by the professor, will be posted on Canvas.

The primary activity in this Practicum course is for students to independently prepare and produce a series of four 15-20 minute thematically-oriented podcasts (in addition to one shorter "Trailer" episode). Students will be trained, and are required*, to use the production studios at WJTB (Campus Center, 4th floor). [* = If you can prove that you have access to hardware and facility that enables you to make good recordings, you are exempt from this rule.] Possibilities include doing a "talk" show, a program focusing on a particular subject/topic, presenting creative/artistic works, or other student-invented concepts. Audio-based projects are preferred. Students choose the topic of their podcast based on their own interests, and are welcome to work in pairs. Podcast proposals will be composed early the semester, everyone will then focus on designing their podcasts.

In addition to preparing, producing, and uploading each podcast, students are also required to submit, via Canvas, file a Podcast Practicum Episode Report Form for each of episode (a template will be posted on Canvas). Students are also required to keep a Podcast Journal (in Google Docs), participate in course Listening Sessions, submit Podcast Evaluations for classmates' podcasts, and prepare a Term Report.

The course is demanding, but should also be fun; the work will present challenges, and will require a certain amount of time commitment. Beyond the course meetings, Professor Funkhouser will be available for individual appointments on Wednesday afternoons (office hours) and by appointment.

Note: Syllabus is subject to change; any major amendments will be announced on Canvas.

General Coursework Outline / Grading

- Podcast Proposal [5 points]
- Producing and posting 4 podcast episodes, plus Trailer (in .mp3 format); includes filing a brief report for each [11 points each / 55 points overall]. Assignments must be submitted by due date. Note: Late work will be penalized, .5 points for every two days past due date. If you have extenuating circumstances that prevent completing production on time, speak with me about them in advance of due date.
- Listening Session presentation & engagement, including providing information for the course Listening Session Record (Google Docs, see Canvas for link) [5 points]
- Prepare 2 Podcast Evaluations for classmates' work, dates/details t.b.a. [5 points each / 10 points total]
- Podcast Journal [15 points]
- Term Report [10 points]

Course Schedule

September

This month you will develop and declare your idea for a Podcast, using a Podcast Practicum Program Proposal template, posted in the Discussions section of Canvas. Program Proposals are due (on Canvas) by 9/19 (preferably sooner); submit as .doc or .pdf via Canvas. Note: Be sure the filename for every file you submit in the course contains your name in it (e.g., studentname-podcast-proposal.pdf). Examples of previous student productions as well as professional productions will be posted on Canvas.

Begin composing your Podcast Journal (via Google Docs) immediately. Podcast Journals should consist of a FULL activity log for coursework: chronicle, with notes on process, everything you do—and think about—with regards to this class/your podcast (again, an example will be provided on Canvas). PUT A DATE ON ALL OF YOUR JOURNAL ENTRIES. Journal entries focus on your research, process, and thoughts about preparing and producing your podcast. Links to your Journals will be registered on Canvas, and will be evaluated on 10/5/23, 11/5/23, 12/5/23. Again: all notes related to your research in the course and production of podcasts should be included. Each evaluation is worth 5 points.

9/5: Class meeting, 311 Cullimore, 6 p.m.

Course introduction & Listening Session I (professor).

Sign up to be a member of WJTB. Instructions will be provided (Canvas).

Reading assignment: Chapter One, Everybody Has a Podcast (except you).

Work in Podcast Journal; in it, brainstorm ideas and prepare a draft of your podcast proposal to bring to next week's class. Be sure permissions are set correctly and post link to your Journal in Canvas.

9/12: Class meeting, 311 Cullimore, 6 p.m.

Discussion (Podcast Topics) and Listening Session II A/B (2 students).

Technology Review (including podcast hosting).

First installment of your Podcast Journal is due. Post link to Canvas [1 point]

PREPARE FINAL PODCAST PROPOSAL / SUBMIT VIA CANVAS BY SEPTEMBER 19 [5 points].

Reading assignment: Chapter Two, Everybody Has a Podcast (except you).

9/19: Class meeting, 311 Cullimore, 6 p.m.

Listening Session III A/B(2 students)

Discussion, Technical Preparation, and technical training sessions at WJTB.

Once your podcast is approved, establish and begin furnishing information on your hosting site (share via Canvas for review/discussion if you wish).

9/26: Class meeting, 311 Cullimore, 6 p.m.

Listening Session IV A/B (2 students)

Journal evaluations are due next week. Please be sure yours is up-to-date.

October

This month you begin to develop and produce podcast content. This is a process. Begin collecting, organizing, and preparing material (including musical accompaniment), contacting people who may be guests, and creating outlines for programs. Determine where your podcast will be hosted. Begin intensive practice with audio software and recording techniques. These matters will be discussed during class meetings, as well as on Canvas. You also continue composing your Podcast Journal (regular entries). By month's end, your podcast Trailer and first episode should be completed.

10/3: Class meeting, 311 Cullimore, 6 p.m.

Podcast Journal evaluation #1 is due 10/5. This should include a draft/basic outline of the 4 programs you plan to produce during the semester. Submit link to Google Doc via Canvas. [4 points]

Discussion and Listening Session V A/B (2 students).

Software and editing instruction.

Reading assignment: Chapters Three and Four, Everybody Has a Podcast (except you).

Non-graded activity: Once your proposal is approved, draft text for your podcast trailer episode (aka Episode 0); post to Canvas before next week's class.

Non-graded activity: Make time to practice recording your voice at WJTB (or wherever you will be recording) in advance of producing your Trailer episode. Create informal .mp3 vocal recording, post to Canvas Discussions before next week's class.

10/10: Class meeting, 311 Cullimore, 6 p.m.

Discussion and Listening Session VI A/B (2 students).

Discussion will include Trailer preparation, and follow-up to recording/editing classes (and your subsequent productions).

10/17: Class meeting, 311 Cullimore, 6 p.m.

Podcast Trailer episode is due (5 mins. maximum, as discussed in class); post to your podcast hosting site. Your podcast site should, by now, also include an icon and information about your podcast. [Note: if extra time is needed to produce the trailer, that will be fine].

Continue to develop and produce content for your first episode. This is a process. Begin collecting, organizing, and preparing material (including musical accompaniment), contacting people who may be guests, and creating outlines for programs.

10/24: Class meeting, 311 Cullimore, 6 p.m.

Discussion and Listening Session VII A/B (2 students).

10/31: Class meeting, 311 Cullimore, 6 p.m.

Discussion and Listening Session VIII A/B (2 students).

Episode 1 of your podcast is due; post to your podcast hosting site. Submit Report via Canvas.

November

Two more episodes of your podcast are to be completed by month's end.

Continue composing regular entries in your Podcast Journal.

11/7: Class meeting, 311 Cullimore, 6 p.m.

Listening Session IX A/B (2 students).

Software review and podcast production/preparation/editing discussion. Continue exploration of audio software techniques (Audacity or other).

Podcast Journal evaluation #2. Submit link to Google Doc via Canvas. [5 points]

11/14: Episode #2 of your podcast (including report) is due. Submit Report via Canvas.

11/21: NO CLASS THANKSGIVING HOLIDAY

Podcast production work continues.

Podcast peer evaluations for Episode #2 are due (11/21). Submit via Canvas.

Link to index of podcasts being produced in the class (to be added)

Podcast production work continues.

Podcast peer evaluations for Episode #1 are due. Submit via Canvas.

Episode #2 Review, Discussion, and Problem Solving of student podcasts.

Episode #3 of your podcast is due. Submit Report via Canvas

December

By the end of the month, you should have prepared, produced, and posted every episode of your podcast. Complete and submit a report for each show (templates are posted on Canvas Announcements section). You are also required to finish your two Peer Evaluations using the Podcast Evaluation Form posted on Canvas, as well as continue working in your Podcast Journal.

12/5: Class meeting, 311 Cullimore, 6 p.m.

Podcast Journal evaluation #3. Submit link to Google Doc via Canvas. [5 points]

Review, Discussion, and Problem Solving of student podcasts.

Episode #3 Review, Discussion, and Problem Solving of student podcasts.

Podcast production work continues.

12/12: Class meeting, 311 Cullimore, 6 p.m.

Podcast production work concludes.

Episode #4 of your podcast (including report) is due 12/13. Submit Report via Canvas.

By 12/13 you should have prepared, produced, and every episode of your podcast (with reports).

Term Report is due 12/12. 1000 word (4-5 pages) reflection on the experience of learning how to produce a podcast. Tell the story of your class experience. What were biggest challenges and frustrations? What interested/stimulated you the most about the process? In addition to (possibly) discussing these questions, feel free to write about any or/and all aspects of your engagement. Submit via Canvas.

ALL WORK FOR THIS COURSE MUST BE COMPLETED BY 12/13/23

OTHER COURSE INFO:

This course is designed to ensure NJIT's Communication and Media program successfully provides its students with a foundation in a range of forms of communication. The course's overall objectives are designed to promote each student's competence or mastery of multi-media communications, using a podcast media as an expressive tool. Through project development and completion, students build practical skills and processes in developing audio and writing projects using online networks competently and artistically. In addition to preparing personal narratives, interviews, and long-term journals, students will acquire the ability to effectively produce and edit podcasts. The course will improve a student's flexibility in communication by using a contemporary media format, thus advancing their general skillset and delivering content via a popular media format.

Students in this course will: 1.) Gain firsthand understanding of a communicative genre; 2.) Explore the practical and creative implementation of podcasting tools and applications; 3.) Develop individual technical (audio) and written creative practices using broadcast (podcast) media; 4.) Use peers to develop ideas, and cultivate production of original work; and 5.) Foster audio artifacts for publication.

Learning outcome 1: Engage in critical thinking and reflection regarding use of language and communication strategies.

Learning Outcome 2: Gain a practice-based introduction to understanding processes and tools of verbal communication across networks.

Learning Outcome 3: Gain a practice-based introduction to methods for speaking effectively and making decisions that enable efficient communication with others.

Learning Outcome 4: The course will expand a student's conceptual perspective of communication, thus improving his or her skills in both quantitative and qualitative reasoning, critical thinking, information literacy, and project management.

Core competencies addressed by the course include: Student awareness of, and engagement with, communications strategies; building perception of contemporary communication(s) environments; performative practice with communication tools; critical thinking on the subject matter; cultivation of communication literacy.

Instructional objectives / evaluation:

Students will be evaluated on the basis of their production's:

- (1) Real-world relevance; design qualities
- (2) Sustained investigation; development of materials (process over time)
- (3) Use of multiple sources and perspectives; originality
- (4) Creating polished products; aesthetic products

Integrated assessment (feedback from multiple sources) will be used in evaluating works (podcasts) produced in the course.

Scale converting number to letter grade

A = 90 - 100

B+ = 85 - 89

B = 80 - 84

C+ = 75 - 79

C = 70 - 74

D = 60 - 69

F = 59 or less
